Thursday, April 24, 2014

In designated locations

9 a.m. – 5 p.m. Back to class

Members have told us they truly enjoy the experience of sitting in on classes and hearing from the talented faculty who make Carolina special. This is your opportunity to relive your college experience, without having to worry about being tested. Please let us know which class (or classes) you would like to attend. You will receive your assignment before our meeting. Because classroom space is limited, please let us know if your plans change.

173 ½ East Franklin Street (between Ye Olde Waffle Shop and Four Corners)

Noon – 5 p.m. 1789 Venture Lab

BOV Member Jim Kitchen has created an incubator 1789 Venture Lab, for students and recent graduates that creates impact on the entrepreneurial community by providing incubation space, mentoring and educational programming for young people working on 40 start-up companies. You're invited to stop in throughout the day to take a look at these businesses of the future.

Hanes Hall, Fourth Floor, Interview Suite

12 p.m. – 4 p.m. Student Career Services Office Hours

BOV members will work one-on-one with students at UNC Career Services, using their skills to mentor people entering the workforce.

UNC Gillings School of Global Public Health
Rosenau Hall Atrium

6 – 7:30 p.m. BOV Reception

Join us as we gather for our evening reception that will highlight the UNC Gillings School of Global Public Health. The School celebrates its 75th anniversary on June 7, 2015, and we will have an opportunity to see some of the programs that make it the number one School of Public Health in the country among public universities and the third best overall. Students from an entrepreneurial project will show off some of their creations for the future of public health. Also, we will hear from the student a cappella group, Harmonyx.

Faculty and students: shaping and creating tomorrow

9:30 a.m. Improving the air we breathe

Will Vizuete uses high performance computers and three dimensional models to simulate the atmosphere which is improving our understanding of the formation of atmospheric air pollution. In addition, he is the chief scientific officer and co-founder of the parent company for Quantaire www.quantaire.com biosensors for airborne toxicology. This expands on the experience at the Gillings School of Global Public Health on Thursday evening by giving BOV members an opportunity to spend time with one of our many faculty members whose work is helping to change the world.

William Vizuete, Associate Professor, Environmental Sciences and Engineering at the Gillings School of Global Public Health.

10:00 a.m. Redesigning NASCAR

UNC School of Journalism and Mass Communication students are joining the production team of FOX Sports 1 and NASCAR to produce a national advertising campaign aimed at making NASCAR enticing to their generation. We will see a glimpse of this project.

Dana McMahan, Assistant Professor, UNC School of Journalism and Mass Communication and student team

10:40 a.m. Fostering Academic Success for Student-Athletes

A University leadership team is taking a comprehensive approach to assessing and enhancing how the University provides academic support to student-athletes.
